

Religious Gatherings & Protests

Are there restrictions on outdoor gatherings / services?

No, as long as physical distancing guidelines can be met.

Are there still size restrictions for indoor services?

Yes, indoor church services are still under the Health Officer Order issued May 26, which requires that in-person attendance at a religious institution is limited to 25 percent of the facility's capacity or 100 individuals, whichever is lower. Everyone must wear a face covering and maintain six feet of distance from others in attendance if they are not members of your own household.

Are temperature checks required for outdoor religious gatherings?

Not at this time. Anyone who is feeling ill should stay home.

Are temperature checks required for indoor religious gatherings?

Not at this time, but some institutions may implement symptom checks, including checking attendee's temperature before admitting them into the facility.

Are masks required for outdoor gatherings?

Yes. Face coverings must be worn anytime individuals leave their home.